When it comes to windows and gliding patio doors, Andersen is America's frame of reference.

At the Andersen window factory every frame and pane, every sash and screw better be tight and right. Straight and true. Or it will never see the light of day.

At Andersen, there are no compromises. No shortcuts. No "seconds." There are only survivors. Only number "ones." Only quality.

That has been the Andersen reputation for over 80 years. That has made their name the most well-known in windows—the one all others are compared to.

That has driven Andersen onward to innovations like Perma-Shield®, a vinyl exterior covering that won't need painting; Terratone, a blendable earth-color perfect for contemporary designs; and new, optional, High-Performance insulating glass, the state-of-the-art in energy efficient glazing.

Andersen offers a complete line of windows, roof windows and gliding patio doors, in hundreds of sizes and glazings. For residential and commercial designs. For new construction, remodeling and replacement.

That's why all across America, when the topic is windows, the subject is Andersen.

Andersen products are inventoried at four Florida Huttig Sash & Door Company locations, and distributed to lumber and building material dealers throughout Florida.

For more information, contact your local dealer. He's listed in the Yellow Pages under "Windows Wood."

Come home to quality. Come home to Andersen.®

Start with the variety of the Mildoor sliding glass door system... and you'll have a stronger finish.

(1500 Double Glaze)
Mildoor's monumental system. Passed wind tests of 120 MPH at 550' heights. Full perimeter weatherstripped. Accepts 3/16" to full 1" glazing without adaptors. Two tandem roller assemblies in each panel ride on stainless steel track runner. Available in unit heights to 9 ft. Unit widths to 20 ft. (For larger units contact factory.) AAMA SGD A3HP.

PATRICIAN 1100
(1200 Double Glaze)
(intermediate series)
This is a heavyweight version of 100 series offering the same versatility, but with larger interlock extrusions for even greater strength. Ideal for mid-rise installations with B2HP specifications. AAMA SGD B2HP.

EXECUTIVE 500
(600 Double Glaze)
Much larger extrusions than competitive brands. Use in mid-rise, high-rise or up-grade single family applications. Single glaze: 3/16," 1/4" or double glaze 5/8." Available with optional header receptor and water dam tracks for high-performance installations. AAMA SGD A2HP.

PATRICIAN 100
(200 Double Glazed)
An extensive line of sliding glass doors offering great versatility for single family home applications. Choose from 14 tracks, 9 headers and 10 jambs. AAMA B1HP.

A broader line.

Just in these four Mildoor systems you can match a door to almost any specs.

Combined, they offer one of the industry's most extensive selections available from one source. All made possible by over 20 years of Miller research, engineering and improved manufacturing.

A better finish.

It's Magnacolor . . . plus! Our new 3-coat protection process. Now you can get PPG-600, over PPG UC54256 "flash primer," over alodine pre-treatment in just a single pass through our newly expanded paint line.

All four door systems are available in white, bronze or silver finishes.

A well-known architect from the Northeast made the comment recently that the best architecture done by Florida architects was "indigenous" architecture. I'd like to address that statement for a minute.

First of all, there is no such thing as "indigenous" architecture. Indigenous, by its very definition, applies to things that are native to or occur naturally in a place. It does not apply, according to Webster, to those things which are introduced to an area. Architecture, it seems to me, is a prime example of that which cannot be indigenous. Now that I've established that the term "indigenous" is not applicable to architecture, let me also say that I understand what people mean when they refer to a certain type of building as being indigenous to a locale. In the case of Florida, the word in the mouth of an historian might mean a log cabin with a dog trot. But more likely, it means, as it did to the architect from the Northeast, the pseudo-Mediterranean, Spanish, Caribbean, whatever, that has come to be associated with Florida since it was first introduced during the real estate boom of the 1920's.

Unfortunately, the stigma of the style has stuck. It has become synonymous with a Florida style, at least in the eyes of some who would judge us. How sad the sentiment that if it isn't Mediterranean, it isn't Florida and if it isn't Florida, it isn't good.

To those who would equate the misnomer "indigenous" with excellent, I raise the question of the skyscraper. To what place is it indigenous? Obviously, there are those who believe that it springs quite naturally from the sidewalks of great Northeastern cities. And, that however at home it may be in the North, it is equally alien to the South.

I understand, of course, how we got this reputation. While New York was building its first skyscrapers, Floridians were still draining the swamps. Well, almost. But, that was then and this is now and the great glass tower of the tribes to the North is no longer theirs exclusively. It's hard to house the headquarters of a great insurance company in a Mediterranean Revival building of six stories, and so the architects of the South have turned their attention to the skies and they, too, are building great, glazy, hyalescent monuments to big business, big cities and big style.

With no histrionics, Florida architects are quietly stepping on the toes of the skyscraper designers to the North. Pretentious crystal palaces are springing up everywhere . . . buildings that open themselves up to light, buildings that gleam and sparkle in the Florida sun, buildings that you can't wait to enter and hate to leave. As a point of reference, look at the three in this issue.

All of this got started because a very famous designer of skyscrapers suggested that the best designs of Florida architects were indigenous designs. I knew what he meant. But, I say, don't judge the body of work being done by Florida architects today on the basis of what was done here in the 20's. We've grown beyond that. The flash of the 80's belongs here, too. If you doubt that, just look around.

NEWS/LETTERS

Jaroszewicz to Resign as Dean

FA/AIA President Mark T. Jaroszewicz, FAIA, has resigned as Dean of the College of Architecture at the University of Florida effective August 1, 1986. In his letter of resignation to University President Marshall Criser, Jaroszewicz cited his age and a desire to return to teaching and writing as the reasons for ending his nearly ten-year term as Dean.

Jaroszewicz's tenure as Dean has been marked by a number of noteworthy highlights, many of which he was directly responsible for. He was the first permanent Dean of the College of Architecture which, in 1976, was a newly independent unit and as such he set up the overall organization into its present form.

To prepare a credible research basis for doctoral studies, UF reorganized its Florida Architecture and Building Research Center (FABRC) and vastly increased its research activities, with the annual volume of contracts rising to well over half a million dollars, a more than seven-fold increase in less than 5 years, placing it among the top 6-8 Colleges of Architecture in the U.S.

The faculty in the College of Architecture has grown to a total of 71. The faculty includes nine Fellows of the respective Professional Societies (6 of the American Institute of Architects, 1 of the American Society of Landscape Architects and 2 of the American Institute of Constructors).

The growing reputation of the College has helped to attract better students. For example, for the last several years the average GPA of students admitted to Upper Division in Archite[c]ture was substantially above 3.(This fall, five of our graduate were admitted to the Graduat School of Design at Harvar which constituted 25% of thei total of 20 admissions.

Under Jaroszewicz's dire[c]tion programs involving foreig scholars have been initiated, r[e]lations with practicing profe[s]sionals around the State have im[]proved and the Department ha raised close to a million dollar[s] including one major deferre gift.

FA/AIA Honor Awards Presented in Orlando

At its annual conference in September, the FA/AIA honored architects, students, craftsmen and members of the media for a variety of achievements. Each of the people honored was someone who had a direct impact on the profession of architecture either through practice or promotion. The awards were presented by FA/AIA President Mark Jaroszewicz, FAIA, and Honor Awards Chairman and President-elect Jim Jennewein, AIA.

This year the Photography Award was presented to Dan Forer of Miami. Forer's career in architectural photography spans many years and he is a regular contributor to many magazines, both state and national. In the area of communications, the newly established Media Awards were presented to Beth Dunlop of the Miami Herald and Renee Garrison of the Tampa Tribune for their reporting of the architect's role in the built environment and to Ken Treister, AIA, for his article for FDQ-Design South Magazine entitled "The Mosaic of Great Cities."

A special award was presented in the area of communications to Linda Bassett and Charles Lyman of WEDU-TV in Tampa for their production for public television entitled "Fantasy of Florida: Dreams Expressed in Architecture." The five thirty-minute programs were very successful at educating the public about Florida architecture.

Another new award this year was the Mellen C. Greely Craftsman Award presented for ingenuity and outstanding performance in the pursuance of a craft or trade. The recipients of this award were Alford Deen, lathing foreman and Thomas Helms, plaster foreman, of Helm & Smith Plastering in Orlando. The two were selected for their outstanding work on the Olin Library at Rollins College in Winter Park.

For outstanding achievement in the pursuance of an architectural education, this year's Bronze Student Medals were presented to Neil B. Shoter from the University of Florida and Randy Lewis from Florida A & M.

In keeping with the aesthetic aspect of the architectural profession, an award is presented each year in the category of Delineation. Efraim Oliver, AIA, of the Coral Gables firm of Spillis Candela & Partners received the award for having developed outstanding originality in the art form of delineation.

In honor of FA/AIA Past President Hilliard T. Smith of the Palm Beach Chapter, the Hilliard T. Smith Silver Medal is an award given in recognition of an architect's active leadership in community affairs. Lester Pancoast, FAIA, received the 1985 Silver Medal. His involvement in community affairs has spanned many years and shows a sincere commitment to improving the quality of life as well as the built environemnt.

The 1985 Award of Merit went to Forrest Kelley, Jr., AIA. This award was presented to Kelley for his 25 years of service to the architectural profession as architect for the Florida Board of Regents.

The Award of Honor for Design given for a consistently high level of originality in the work of an architect, was prsented to John Howey, AIA, of Tampa. Howey is on the National AIA Design Committee and the FA/AIA Design Awards Committee.

Two Pullara Awards are presented each year in honor of the late Anthony L. Pullara, an outstanding member of the AIA. The Pullara Individual Award went to Bob Graf, AIA, in recognition of the time and effort he has given to the Florida Association of the AIA. In addition to serving a term as President, he currently chairs the FA/AIA Compensation Task Force. The Anthony L. Pullara Memorial State Chapter Award was presented to the Florida Central Chapter of the AIA for outstanding service to the community an[d] the profession. The award wa[s] received by Chapter Presiden[t] Dick Pritts, FAIA.

Architects and Contractors Make Joint Recommendations

The Board of Directors of the Florida Central Chapter, AIA, has endorsed a joint recommendations process developed by the Professional Liaison Committee of the AIA and Associated General Contractors of Mid-Florida.

1. Estimating Time Recommendation: A minimum of 20 working days should be allowed between the date the construction documents are made available to the bidders until the date bids are due. Especially large or complicated jobs should allow additional time.

2. Bid Opening Time Recommendation: 1. Bid openings should be held: a. On Tuesday through Thursday excluding legal holidays and the day following legal holidays. b. from 2 P.M. to 4 P.M., preferably 3 P.M. or later.

3. Plan Deposit Guarantee Recommendation: Plan deposit should approximate cost of reproducing plans specifications. The minimum plan deposit should be $50 per set.

4. Number of Sets of Bidding Plans & Specifications Recommendation: 1. The architect should judge from the complexity, size and scope of building project the number of bidding documents to prepare in advance to obtain maximum response to bid call. 2. On large and/or complex construction projects, the architect should issue, on deposit, a minimum of three sets of complete bidding documents to each general contractor request.

5. Issuance of Addenda Recommendation: 1. If addenda are necessary, they should be issued as soon as possible, but in any event, not later than 4 working days before receipt of bids. 2. When an addendum requires major or extensive changes, an appropriate extension of the bidding period should be granted.

Take A Closer Look At Why Your Competition Builds With Natural Gas.

Availability.
From Pensacola to Miami, natural gas is found in more new homes and developments than ever before. Take a closer look at the availability of natural gas. You'll find a future supply on which you can build. And sell. And profit.

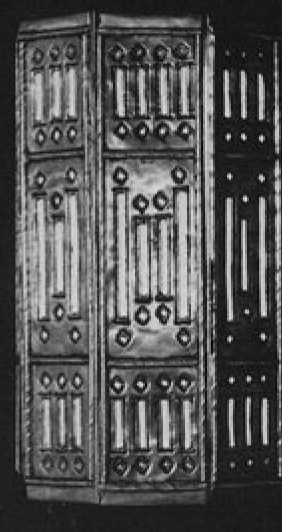

Marketability.
People moving to Florida depended on natural gas in their old home and prefer it in a new home. Cleanliness, low maintenance and low operating costs are qualities that every homebuyer appreciates.

Profitability.
A new home buyer is willing to pay more for an energy efficient natural gas house. That means better homes and better profits.

What's the difference between a roof window and a skylight?

Model TPS top-hung roof window

Model VS ventilating skylight

The difference is very straightforward. A roof window opens and pivots so both glass surfaces can be cleaned from inside. A skylight does not pivot for cleaning. Of course, there is a difference in quality and value among manufacturers. But, a simple comparison of features, quality and price will show you why VELUX, with 44 years of experience and craftsmanship, is the world leader.

In addition to our four distinctive models, VELUX provides precision-engineered prefabricated flashings to make installation easy and weathertight. We also offer quick delivery and a full range of optional accessories and glazing.

The design called for reflective bands of steel. They had to resist waves or ripples, and roll to a neat and clean joint.

The solution was Steel-O-Bond material.

Appearance: Stainless Steel-O-Bond material is made of two sheets of number four finish stainless steel and a thermoplastic core. Like its companion product Alucobond® material, it is non-corrosive.

Flatness: Steel-O-Bond material does not oil-can. It remains visually flat with virtually no substructure support.

PROJECT: The Park Center Office Building, Maitland, FL.
OWNER: American Hanover – Maitland Partners Ltd., a joint venture of principals of The Palmer Group Ltd. and Philips & Company.
ARCHITECT, ENGINEER, and CONTRACTOR: The Haskell Company, Jacksonville, FL.

Joining: Panels can be attached with a continuous edge grip system for a perfectly smooth and flush joint.

More information: Steel-O-Bond material is available from Consolidated Aluminum, a leading developer and producer of composite materials for specific needs. A great glittery showpiece that's anchored to the river

Two Prudential Plaza, Jacksonville

The Rock of Gibraltar, the symbol at the top of the South Central Home Office of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, has long been a familiar sight to the thousands of Jacksonville residents who cross the St. John's River each day. The "Rock" which adorns the 1955 Prudential building, has now risen to new heights and appears at the top of Two Prudential Plaza, the new South Central Home Office Operations Center for Prudential. The original building, now known as One Prudential Plaza, was designed by KBJ Architects and when built in 1955, it was the first in a series of tall buildings that would eventually reshape the Jacksonville riverfront and change its skyline dramatically. The new Operations Center was also designed by KBJ Architects and planned to be a part of the Prudential complex of buildings. It is also the newest addition to the banks of the St. John's as Jacksonville turns to its greatest natural resource as a means of improving the quality of its urban environment.

Until recently, public access to the St. John's in the downtown area, especially on the South Bank, was limited. But, when it was announced that a riverfront festival marketplace was being designed by the Rouse Company, people got excited about the River and the possibilities it offered. A rediscovery took place and now the St. John's is attracting business, cultural and recreational activities to its banks like a magnet.

Two Prudential Plaza, the newest and perhaps the most exciting addition to the river scene, stands directly behind Friendship Park and is clad in two striking shades of green reflective glass. It is a vertical sculpture which provides a gateway to the River while achieving a unique architectural statement. Anchoring the west wall of the Riverwalk, the new structure is an example of a building that not only fits into context, but enhances the environment.

Having outgrown its original facility in the late 1970's, Prudential required a 750-780,000 sq. ft. office to house its clerical and computer operations, as well as a 750-seat cafeteria and 1,230-space parking garage. Additionally, it wanted to provide its employees and the City of Jacksonville with access to open space and the waterfront. The architects incorporated all of Prudential's requirements and aesthetic considerations into two towers of diagonal configuration, linked by a connecting bridge. This bridge is a glass-enclosed, four-level structure which has 13,800 gross sq. ft. of space. Located on the second floor are the employee lounge and passage area, which is the main artery to the public cafeteria.

In juxtaposing the diagonal structural grid with the ground grid, the architects were able to achieve dramatic articulation. The structural grid was enclosed in two shades of green reflective glass bands and a horizontal lattice of metal banding to give scale to the tower. The ground grid and its related functions erode the vertical sculpture of the building by creating a transparency at the lower levels. The effect is threefold: it develops a human scale; it permits the park to be seen through the complex of buildings and it eases the transition from one space to another. All the elements in the ground grid convey the theme of bringing the outside indoors.

Each floor in the complex has a 270-degree river view. The cores of each tower, which contain the restrooms, the elevators and the mechanical equipment, are located to the south to maximize solar gain and obscure the least desirable views from the windows. These cores also give unity to the building's massing and visually anchor the bridge.

The new South Central Home Office Operations Center is the first in Prudential's history to have its own communications system. The system, manufactured by InteCom, operates the telephones and computer terminals with its own computer. By keeping this system in-house, Prudential will save a considerable amount of time and money.

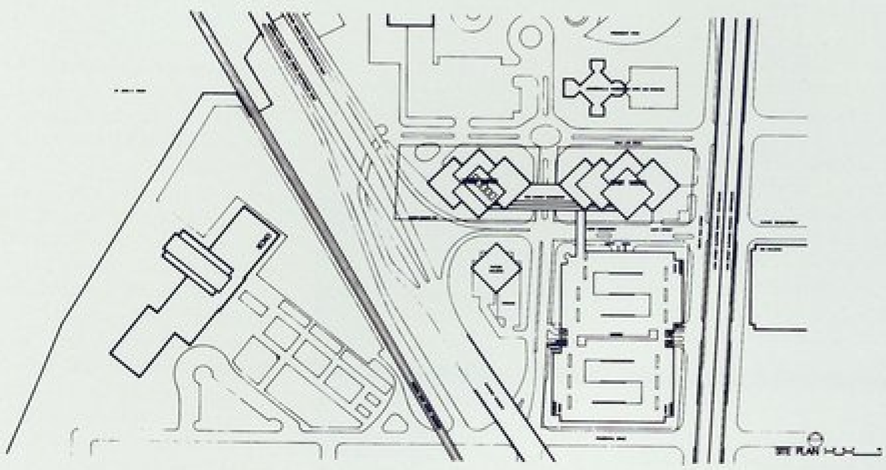

As the riverfront becomes the new heart of Jacksonville, Two Prudential Plaza will be contributing to the excitement along the river's edge. It is both a visual and pedestrian link to the waterfront and it is surely a fitting testimony to the renaissance of the river in Jacksonville.

The old fashioned concept of libraries as dead places where people tiptoe and whisper was quickly dispelled when Main Library opened in Broward County in 1984. Even before its doors opened to the public as a resource center, the soaring landmark building had been established as a center for social/cultural activity providing an elegant background for receptions, balls and other such events — a bonus function that has grown steadily.

The $30 million building is the architectural centerpiece and standard for excellence of the resurgent central business district of Fort Lauderdale, whose urban core virtually had been demolished. As a resource center, it was programmed to house more than one million volumes including special collections, while directing the activities of a network of 22 regional and branch libraries.

Among its other roles is its use as the research library for the urban campuses of Florida Atlantic University, Broward Community College, and Florida International University, and as the first "Center for the Book" in Florida outside the Library of Congress.

The relatively small site (1.75 acres) is at the crossroads of downtown pedestrian traffic and directly adjacent to historic old Stranahan Park which has recently been relandscaped in harmony with Main Library. Its neighbor in the park is the Fort Lauderdale Women's Club, a friendly little building that originally housed the city's first library.

The Main Library is a project of the Board of County Commissioners and was financed by a 1978 bond issue that provided many other amenities such as roads, parks and corrections facilities for the fastest growing county in the country. It was largely the concept of Director of Libraries Cecil Beach, who has built or renovated nine other community libraries since the county system was created six years ago.

It was Beach's theory that it cost no more to build good design than it does to build poor design. The disposable buildings that sprung up during South Florida's period of rapid growth are being replaced by buildings which have come of age culturally, and it is gratifying to Beach that one of the first of these is a library.

Flexibility of floor plan was one of the major design criteria. To provide for easy rearrangement of growing book collections and other resource materials, a structural system of 55-foot span, prestressed concrete double-tees was designed to minimize the number of supporting columns. Coffers formed by the concrete tees house the exposed systems for general lighting, air-conditioning, speakers and sprinklers, while systems for telephone, computer and electric power are embedded in the floor on a five-foot grid. This allows carrels, CRTs and information areas to be plugged in at virtually any point they are needed and reduces the need for permanent walls. Even in workroom areas, partitions are demountable for easy relocation.

Programmed main floor services, which otherwise would have more than covered the entire site have been divided between the first and second levels. The street level is organized as a pedestrian passageway, inviting the city into the building and past its popular library, special library for the blind and handicapped, a 300-seat auditorium and service areas that Florida's water table would not allow to be put in a more normal basement. The auditorium is available for community use as a cinema, lecture hall and concert space.

An outside stair, inside escalators, a glass-enclosed elevator for the handicapped and a bridge from the municipal parking garage across the street all converge at the controlled entry and circulation desk on the second level, just past the outdoor-indoor dining area.

Elevators from the second level transport patrons to open stacks and special collections on the third through sixth floors, and library personnel to administrative offices, workspaces and additional meeting rooms on the seventh and eighth floors.

The two-level entry lobby contains a fair sampling of Florida greenery and still water behind a glass wall facing north that permits views out to the park and the Library's own outdoor seating area around a pool and fountain.

The outer walls of the library are sheathed in native Florida "keystone"—a fossil-filled limestone mined in the Keys and the traditional building block in the area. Where these "sun side" walls are pierced by windows, they are protected from harsh light by either balconies or precast concrete sun screens that allow heat to escape while reflecting light indoors. The northern glass curtain wall is stepped and faceted to provide a series of shaded terraces, allowing browsers to read in the open air. An eight-story tower on the northwest corner was designed with a removable curtain wall for future expansion across what is now a landscaped lawn. The distinctive shape of the auditorium has been articulated separately from that of the main mass of the Library above and has been further dramatized with a patterned ceramic tile sheathing designed by Ivan Chermayeff.

The Broward Main Library is a very special place designed to exploit its Florida setting by using the native assets in a program intended to suit the serious student and convert the casual visitor.

A classy glass act

2600 Maitland Center Orlando, Florida

Architect: Clyde A. Brady, III, The Design Arts Group, Inc. (formerly Hunton, Shivers, Brady Associates, Architect, P.A.)
Owner: Patrick Morley, Morley Properties, Inc.,
Engineering: Mechanical, Electrical, Structural: Tilden, Lobnitz & Cooper
Civil: Foster-Conant and Associates
Interior Design: Associated Space Design
Landscape Architect: Foster-Conant and Associates
Contractor: Holder Construction Co.

The challenge in designing 2600 Maitland Center was to avoid the glass box syndrome in office building design, maximize space, make parking as accessible as possible and create a functional, beautiful addition to the Orlando-area business environment.

The innovative solution that architects Hunton, Shivers, Brady (now The Design Arts Group) came up with involved the incorporation of a dramatic water element along a massive wall bisecting the reflecting glass skin of the central office building, with entrances placed at diagonal corners to bring parking closer.

The three-story building, which sits on a ten-acre site just outside Orlando, has 160,000 square feet of office space. The pools, swales, ponds and berms that surround the building create a parklike atmosphere while breaking up the vast parking expanse for almost 600 cars. Twin building entrances formed by notched curves at opposite corners minimize the distance from car to building.

A massive, 45-foot-high, 350-foot-long granite aggregate precast concrete wall bisects the building, beginning at one entrance, extending diagonally through the central closed atrium, and exiting through the opposite entrance.

Architect Clyde Brady, known for his strong, clean-lined buildings that emphasize a single architectural detail, explained how a "water element" and the bisecting wall transform a basic square building from a static glass box into a vital architectural design blending natural environmental elements and a functional, efficient use of interior space. According to Brady, the water element becomes more or less a creek, to pass along the wall and lead to a fountain in the center. And the creek spills down the steps at the two entrances.

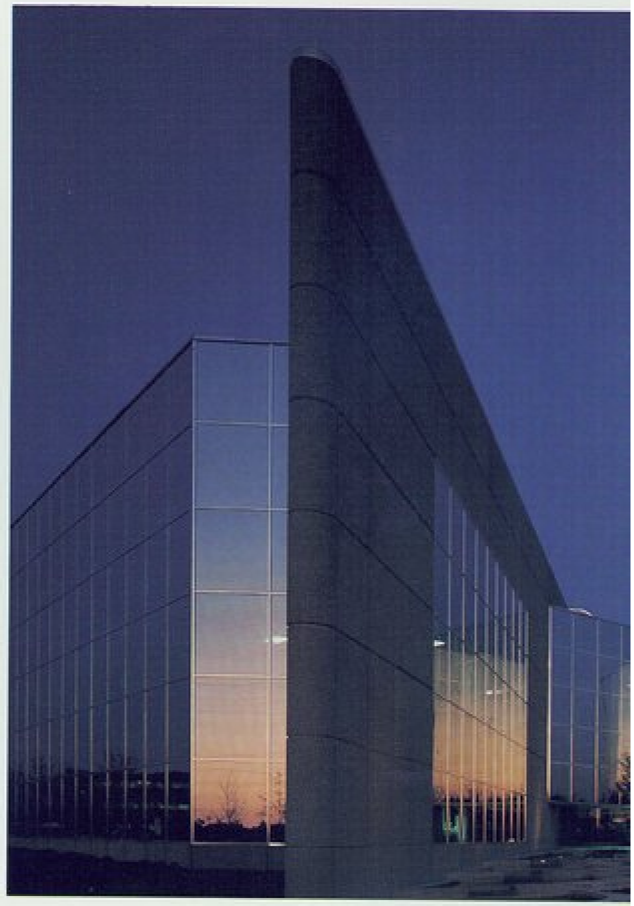

The wall and creek link the outdoors with a lush, plant-filled atrium combining water, landscaping, colors, patterns and textures. A long, vaulted skylight produces a strong beam of light that washes the concrete wall in the atrium area. A central fountain forms the base of the columns supporting the wall.

The striking exterior curves, angles and planes of the building are brought to life with silver reflective glass panels set within a grid of polished aluminum mullions. The vast mirrored expanse reflects the surrounding images of trees, water and the sky.

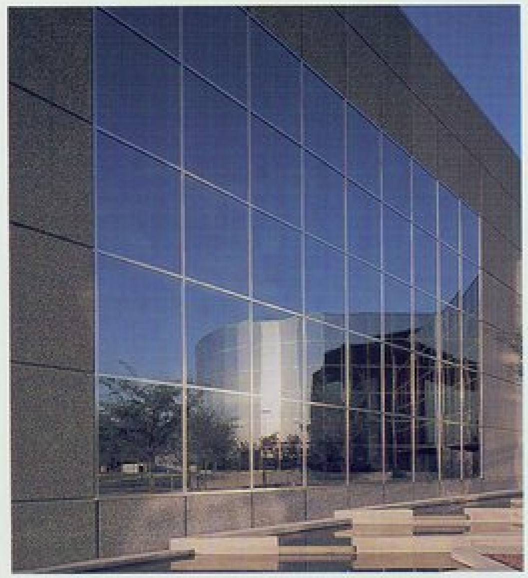

The building was completed in mid-June at a cost of $6 million. From the beginning the project was a marriage of innovative aesthetics and straightforward practicality. In 2600 Maitland Center, the architect took the simple element of a wall, emphasized it, used it to define two entrances and with it, provided an element which links the inside with the outside. It's a building that has something to say.

St. John's Cathedral Jacksonville, Florida

Architect: Gordon & Smith Architects, Inc.
Kenneth R. Smith, AIA
W. Stanly Gordon, AIA
Acoustical Consultant: David L. Klepper, Klepper Marshall King Associates, Ltd.
Structural Consultant: Gomer E. Kraus & Associates, Inc.
Mechanical, Electrical Consultants: Van Wagenen and Beavers, Inc.
Interior Restoration: William E. Arnold Co.
Woodwork: Herbert Read, Ltd., Exeter, England
Stained Glass Restoration: Advent Glass Works

The task of restoring and preserving the 1906 church fabric and furnishings of this Episcopal parish was no small task. The Jacksonville firm of Gordon & Smith Architects, Inc. did the architectural work which necessitated closing the Cathedral for one year. As a long-time member of the St. John's congregation, Gordon brought to the project great familiarity with the original structure and an understanding of church history and iconography. Smith had an extensive background in restoration, and during his association with architect Herschel Shepard, FAIA, he was intricately involved with the restoration of Florida's Historic Capitol, a job of monumental proportions.

St. John's Cathedral, in downtown Jacksonville, is the seat of the Bishop and a building rich in both architecture and history. Though its history dates back to 1829, the existing structure was completed in time for Easter services in 1906. New York architects Snelling & Potter designed the building which was cruciform in shape and Gothic Revival in style. The facade has an interesting array of ornaments, both architectural and ecclesiastical, including winged gargoyles, the eagles of St. John, Celtic crosses and lancet windows with intricate tracery.

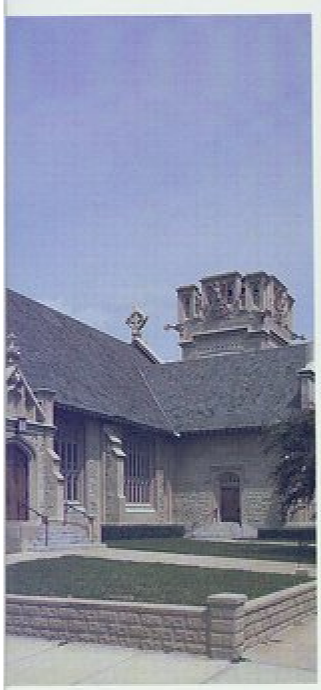

The exterior is faced with Indiana limestone and the roof is made of Pennsylvania slate. The main altar, pulpit and baptismal font are French Caen stone and the interior is capped with a hammar beam ceiling.

To commemorate the 150th anniversary of St. John's Parish, the cathedral underwent a $1.7 million restoration in 1983-84, thus enhancing one of the city of Jacksonville's architectural landmarks.

The program requirements for the restoration included maintaining the original Neo-Gothic style and character of the building, cleaning and restoring the exterior and restoring, protecting and insulating the stained glass. In addition, the interior needed to be altered to provide the appropriate setting for a Cathedral whose worship is now structured by the revised 1979 Book of Common Prayer. Former seating capacity had to be maintained while enabling the entire congregation to see and experience the liturgy. Acoustics were improved, the proscenium opening to the sanctuary was raised and widened not only to improve the acoustics, but to permit the cruciform shape of the church to be appreciated for the first time.

The $1,700,000 budget included the interior and exterior restoration of the church, the expansion of the basement, the replacement of mechanical, electrical and sound systems, the addition of new furnishing and the restoration of others, and the addition of a five division, 72 rank pipe organ.

Workout Miami

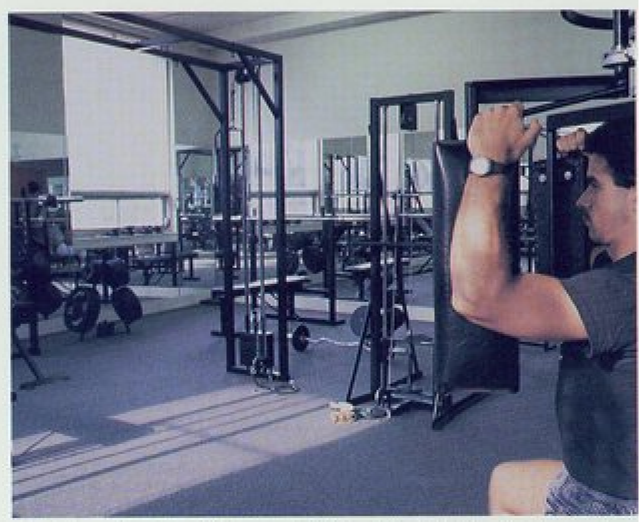

Architect: Randy Atlas, Ph.D., AIA, Atlas & Associates, Miami
Owner: H. Joe Fela and George Villalon
Contractor: Fernando Alicot, Miami
Interiors: Walter Dierickx, Garretts House of Interiors, Miami

The design of exercise studios is evolving into an art form of its own. A good understanding of ergonomics (the study of human dimensions and movement) and an awareness of the potential for sports injuries is required to design a successful aerobic dance studio or exercise workout area. A recent successful warehouse retrofit in South Florida is Workout Miami.

The building was constructed in 1930 for use as a Mahi Shrine. The two-story limestone structure was extensively modified in 1980 to house small commercial shops and provide storage for an appliance wholesaler. The 1980 restoration of the building won an Award of Merit from the Florida South Chapter of the AIA. The second floor was vacated in late 1984 and subsequently leased by Workout Miami. Design and construction on the warehouse conversion to studio space began in February, 1985, and was completed three months later at a cost of $100,000.

In addition to the obvious asset of a prime business location in downtown Miami, the building has a clear span of 48 by 82 feet without structural interruption and an existing wood parquet floor. Because of the large amount of space available for exercise, class enrollment was not limited as it is in so many smaller studios. Also unlike other warehouse conversions where students are forced to dodge structural columns is the uniqueness of the clear span.

In addition, the common hazard to aerobic dancers known as shin splints has been avoided because of the wood floor. Shin splints are caused by dancing on flooring, such as concrete, that is too hard. The importance of a wooden floor lies in its ability to give and take with the bouncing movement of the dancers.

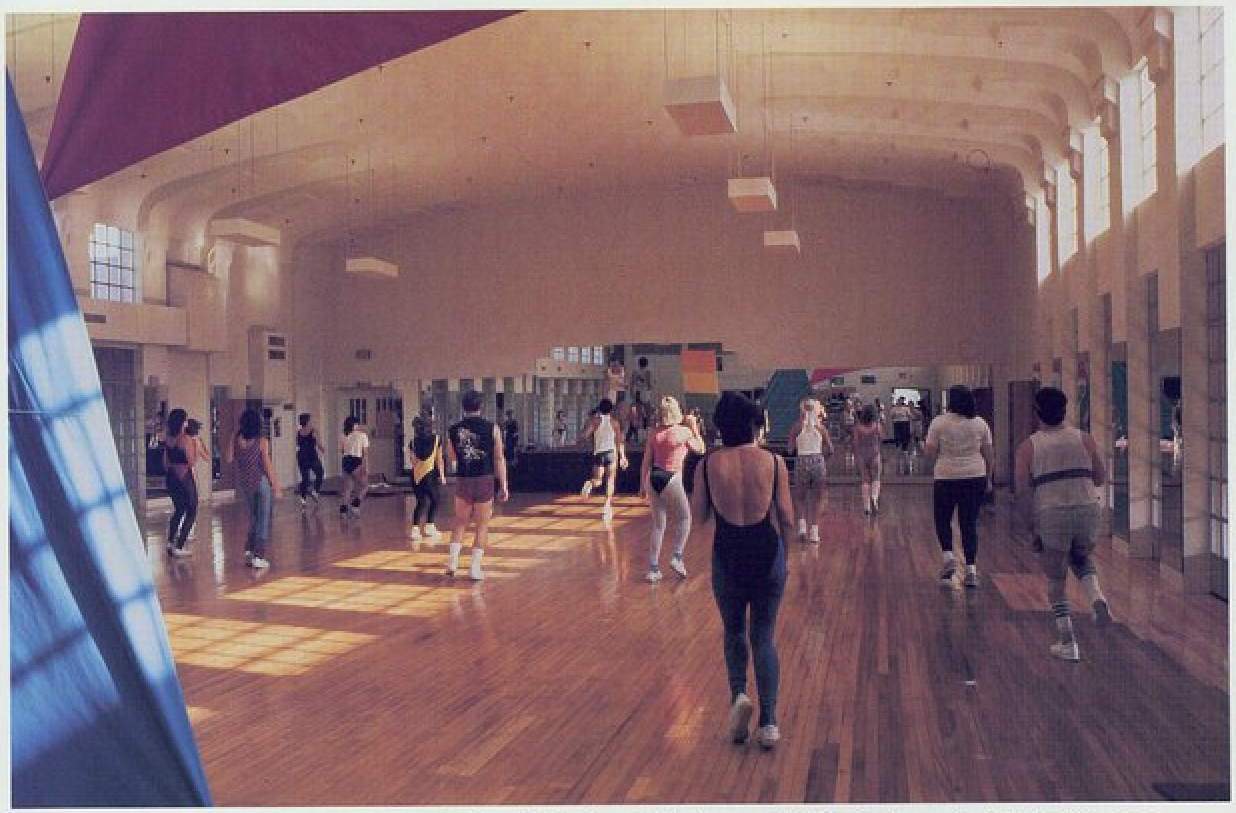

The goal of the restoration was to convert storage space into a bright, exhilarating architectural space. The floor was treated for termites and ants, which led to partial replacement, sanding, resurfacing and a 4-mil layer of clear polyurethane. A platform was constructed at one end of the dance floor for the instructors to demonstrate steps and surrounding walls were mirrored so students can gauge their progress. In the rear of the studio a boutique and juice bar were added. There is a canopy-covered patio on each side of the dance floor which is now used as a waiting area. The patios will eventually be furnished, creating a cafe setting overlooking downtown Miami and Biscayne Boulevard.

The free weight room was carpeted for noise reduction. Natural daylight provides an open, airy feeling that helps counteract the physical discomfort of heavy exercise.

Security for the studio is achieved through the use of infrared and ultrasonic motion detectors. All doors have magnetic switches and the outside windows in the weight room are alarm foiled. All detection devices are centrally monitored by an alarm company. The building had an existing sprinkler system which has been supplemented with smoke detection sensors which are centrally monitored.

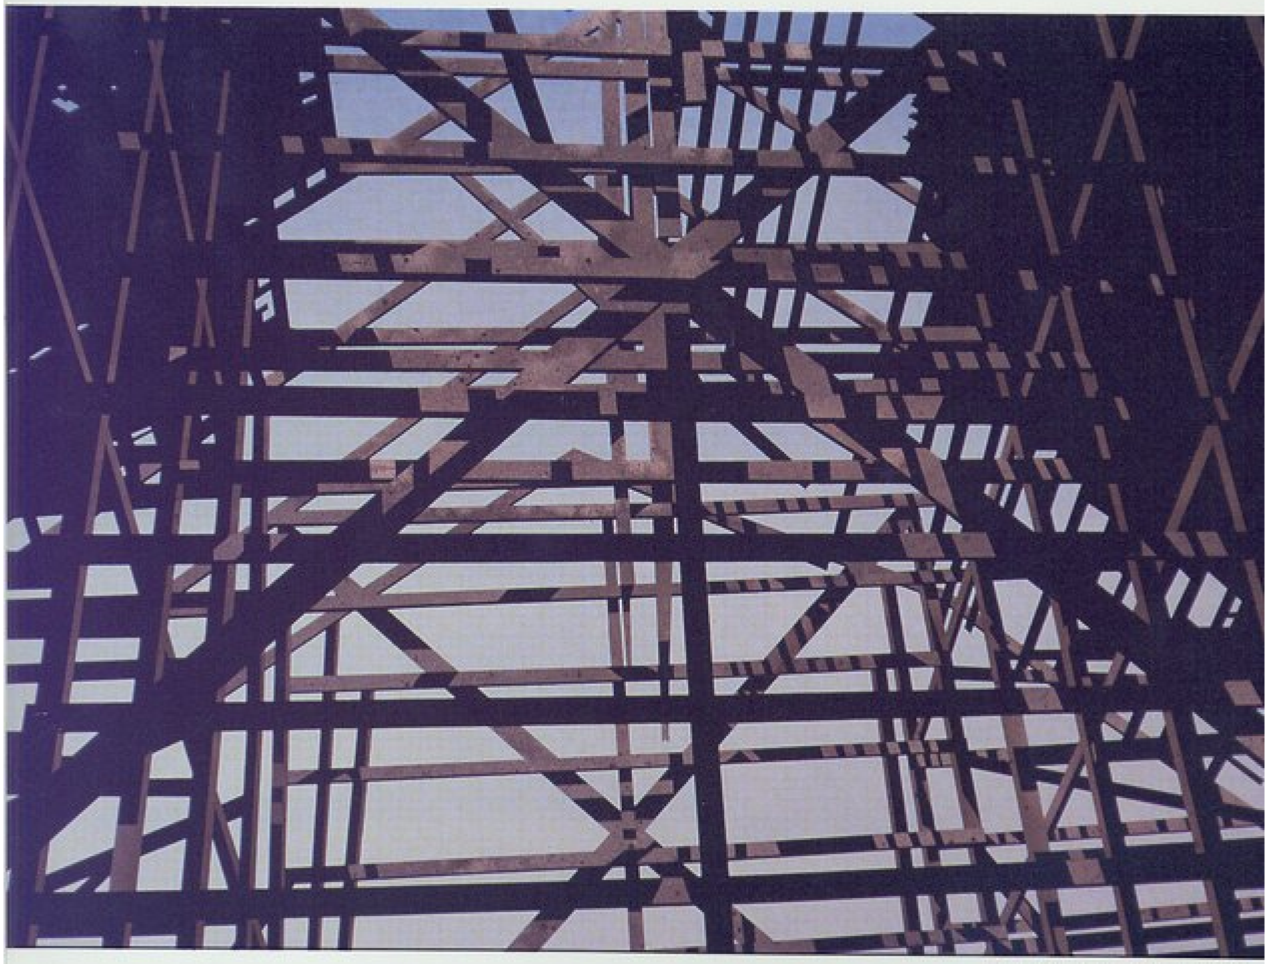

After months of searching for exactly the right business location, a site became available which met client criteria. A good site coupled with good "ergonomic" design resulted in a dance and exercise center that enhances the workout time for the user while minimizing the possibility of injury.

George Dombek: the architect as artist

Havana Tobacco Barn, 40" × 60"

George Dombek doesn't think that architects are using artists or art work in a very creative way. Dombek is an architect. He's also an artist . . . an artist who paints buildings.

Dombek laments that the standard practice today is for an architect or owner to hire an art consultant after a building is completed and purchase some paintings which may, or may not, fit into the architectural setting. That wasn't always the case. At one time, artists did work closely with architects in order to complete a cohesive environment.

George Dombek lives and works in Tallahassee, Florida, where he teaches Design and Graphics in the School of Architecture at Florida A&M and painting in the Art Department at Florida State University. After getting a Bachelor of Architecture from the University of Arkansas and an MFA in Painting from Arkansas in 1977, Dombek joined the architecture faculty at Florida A & M. After a leave of absence to teach architecture at King Faisal University in Saudi Arabia, he returned to A & M where he still teaches.

Teaching doesn't allow Dombek the time to practice architecture, but he hopes to work closely with architects in the future and plan large scale paintings which are appropriate to specific environments. By appropriate he means the color, size, shape, subject matter, etc.

Clay Street, 40" × 60"

Tallahassee Jail, 30" × 42"

After twenty one-man shows and sixty awards since 1975, Dombek has seen his paintings purchased and hung in a number of private collections as well as the Carnegie Museum of Art in Pittsburgh and the Butler Institute of American Art in Youngstown, Ohio. A few years ago he completed eight large paintings for the Hyatt Regency in Chicago and just recently the Barnett Bank in Jacksonville purchased two paintings for its permanent collection.

For the past year, Dombek has been doing a series of paintings based on a tobacco barn in Havana, Florida, a small town east of Tallahassee. He is attracted to the complexity of the barn's structure and the way light filters through the roof. The mystery of the space is something Dombek enjoys sharing with others.

Lawsuits over construction and design defects raise housing costs

By I. Barry Blaxberg and Mark T. Reeves

In recent years, the housing construction industry has experienced a dramatic increase in the amount of litigation resulting from alleged construction and design defects. The impact of this trend has been felt by virtually every occupation and profession tied to the housing industry — from developers, surveyors and leaders to architects, engineers, contractors and even local governments.

Though exact figures are difficult to pinpoint, lawsuits involving the housing industry already may add $3,000 to $10,000 to the price of a $100,000 home.

To what extent should the housing and construction industry be liable for those defects and imperfections found in housing?

Most in the industry agree that firms or individuals producing shoddy or dangerously defective design or construction work should be liable for the resulting damages. However, the industry also generally agrees that no construction project is perfect, nor would the cost of building such a flawless project be acceptable to the consumer.

Those directly involved with the planning and design of housing, particularly architects and engineers, often are drawn into litigation in which their services may not have had anything to do with the resulting defect or injury. This often arises because an aggrieved party will "sue everyone involved" so that a completely innocent architect, contractor or engineer, as the case may be, gets caught up in a costly problem which he did not cause.

Industry analysts complain that skilled craftsmen, once numerous, are now few and far between and generally have been replaced by unskilled workers. Furthermore, the contracting or subcontracting companies that employ such workers are often short-lived, undercapitalized or poorly insured. Consequently, this often leaves the original developers and/or architects "holding the bag" for defects that may not become apparent for years. Accordingly, the design professions have seen significant increases in their insurance premiums.

A threshold issue in the area of construction and design defects is the amount of time (or statute of limitations) within which a homeowner, or homeowner's association, can bring legal action for alleged design or construction defects. Florida has taken a middle-of-the-road position regarding this time period for actions based upon economic loss. Florida generally applies a four-year statute of limitation for actions arising from the design, planning or construction of improvements to real property. However, in the case of "latent" of hidden defects, this four-year period runs from the time the defect is discovered or should have been discovered with the exercise of due diligence.

Florida law also provides a further qualification: Actions involving improvements to real property must be started within 15 years after the completion of the construction, the occupancy of the building or a similar criterion. This provision helps to alleviate the liability of an architect or builder with regard to actions based upon economic injury, yet insures that the property owner has a lengthy period in which to sue, should a design or construction defect occur. The cost of insurance can become a very significant factor with such a lengthy period of exposure for liability.

An emerging area of construction litigation involves implied warranties of fitness. Until recently, such warranties had only applied to goods and services, not to improvements upon real property, which had always been regulated by the doctrine of caveat emptor (buyer beware).

In the early 1970's, the Florida Supreme Court in Gable v. Silver decided that implied warranties of fitness and merchantability applied to the sale of new condo units.

But what, exactly, is an implied warranty of fitness or merchantability? Though this is still an open question, new dwellings must be reasonably fit for use as a residence, or be habitable. Habitability at least requires that the roof not leak and the plumbing be functional. But it may not require that the air conditioning work.

Even local municipalities, through the alleged negligence of their building inspectors, have been the targets of lawsuits. However, in April 1985 the Supreme Court of Florida ruled that governmental entities and municipal corporations would not be liable in tort to individual property owners for the negligent actions of their building inspectors.

In Trianon Park Condominium Association v. City of Hialeah, the Trianon Park Condominium Association brought suit against the developer for breach of warranty, negligence and strict liability, and against the City of Hialeah for its negligent performance in inspecting the condominium building and certifying it for occupancy.

The association complained about numerous construction defects that caused leaky roofs in a number of units. Nevertheless, the Florida Supreme Court stated that "the government clearly has no responsibility to protect personal property interests or ensure the quality of buildings that individuals erect or purchase."

The court added that the proper remedy for faulty construction lies in an action against the contractor, or developer or seller.

Some courts have extended liability to the primary lender for construction defects in certain situations. Fortunately for institutional lenders, such liability usually has been limited to situations in which the lender becomes involved in activities clearly outside the scope of those that are commercially reasonable and accepted within the construction or finance field.

For example, in a condominium project, when a lender forecloses on a developer, takes title, finishes construction and subsequently sells the units, courts may be more apt to find liability on the part of the lender for construction defects in this situation than when the lender, in a more traditional setting, has limited control over the construction phase.

The legal climate today in the home construction industry can only be characterized as unsettled. The long-term economic impact may be even more significant. At all levels of the building industry, firms and companies faced with ever-increasing costs for litigation and insurance premiums may well leave the market.

Aside from these costs, firms that do stay could be deterred from the use of innovative building techniques. Creative ideas that otherwise might reduce the cost of housing may simply never be tried because architects, engineers and builders fear lawsuits in connection with experiments that may not prove particularly effective.

Eventually, the state legislature may intervene.

It can be said with some certainty that those involved in the construction industry, from the largest subdivision developer to the smallest masonry subcontractor, will continue to face greater numbers of lawsuits. And this ultimately will raise the price of the average family home to the consumer.

MEDICAL MESSAGE
from the Florida Doctors

THE FLORIDA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, INC. 1874

REYE SYNDROME AND ASPIRIN

A possible link between the use of aspirin to treat children with influenza (flu) or chicken pox and the occurrence of Reye Syndrome has been recognized by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The physicians of Florida want you to be informed about this potentially dangerous association and to advise you that Reye Syndrome is a medical emergency which requires immediate medical attention.

Reye Syndrome is a rare acute condition which may develop when a child is recovering from the flu, chicken pox or other viral illnesses. It occurs most often in flu season, from October to March, in infants, children and teens. Symptoms appear when the child should be recuperating from the flu or other illness. The first sign is persistent vomiting, severe headaches and lethargy. Within half a day, the child can become very disoriented and distressed.

If your child exhibits these symptoms, seek medical attention immediately. Reye Syndrome, if left untreated, can cause coma, permanent brain damage and death. Treatment requires up to 10 days of hospitalization for appropriate care and monitoring. Patients must be watched closely and are considered out of danger only when blood chemistry, respiration and other signs have been stable for 48 hours.

Recent studies have indicated that the use of aspirin and salicyclates - compounds used in medications to lessen pain, fever and inflammation - may be associated with the development of Reye Syndrome. Fortunately, most childhood illnesses are minor and will fade away without treatment so parents should avoid the use of such medications until they have consulted their child's physician. Your doctor is aware of this possible complication and will advise you accordingly.

For more information about Reye Syndrome and the possible link with aspirin, consult your physician.

This is a medical message from the Florida Medical Association on behalf of the doctors of Florida presented as a public service feature of this newspaper.

What makes an architect a good financial manager?

The secret of a successful architectural practice is combining good design with good financial management. Unfortunately, many design firm principals find themselves stretched thin trying to do both–and not doing their best at either.

Harper and Shuman, Inc. can help–with CFMS, the most comprehensive, fully integrated computer-based financial management system for architectural firms. CFMS was created by, and specifically for, design professionals, and is sponsored by the American Institute of Architects.

Harper and Shuman, Inc. has over 10 years of experience working with more than 400 design firms throughout the United States and Canada. The CFMS package has been designed as an integrated system that will provide for all the financial management needs of design firm practice–in project cost control as well as general accounting.

Harper and Shuman and CFMS*

CFMS is supported through comprehensive documentation, systems design and custom programming. On-site consultation, in-house seminars, classroom training sessions and phone-in consultation are available from Harper and Shuman's staff of skilled financial management specialists.

Whether your firm is large or small, Harper and Shuman has the right product and service options to meet your needs–from MICRO/CFMS software for operating on in-house microcomputers like the IBM PC or DEC Rainbow, to CFMS software for DEC VAX or Prime. Or, use our low cost timesharing services as an easy way to get started.

Harper and Shuman, Inc. can help with the financial management–the good design is up to you!

THIS FLOOR SYSTEM NEEDED GYP-CRETE
RATED:
Flame Spread - 0
Fuel Contributed - 0
Smoke Density - 0
GYP-CRETE Floor Underlayment
• U.L. Fire-Rated Systems
• Sound Control
• Lightweight
• Sets in 90 Minutes
• No Shrinkage Cracks
• Eliminates Creaks and Nail-Pops
• Smooth Base for All Finished Floor Products
Lacking impervious seal, plates subject to flame erosion; chimney effect of walls.
No defense against "burn-through;" spreading fire to lower floors.
GYP-CRETE "key" to sound, fire and thermal control. Gypsum wallboard and GYP-CRETE Underlayment completely seal base of room.
Outside wall plate sealed against cold air with impervious seal.
GYP-CRETE Underlayment isolates plywood subfloor from more flammable floor coverings.
